State Revenue Up $13 Million Over Last Year

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State revenues for the fiscal year which ended Tuesday hit a record $195,093,959, an increase of $13.5 million over last year.

Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Cheney issued the tax collection report and said he expects the steady revenue increase to continue at least another six months.

The $195 million figure was almost double the $101 million collected in 1954 and almost six times as much as the $36.6 million collected 20 years ago in 1944.

Tax collections for June, the last month of the year, totaled $15,794,217.

The three per cent sales tax, the state's main revenue source, produced $67,455,204 for the year, an increase of about $5.3 million.

Income taxes were up $2 million and gasoline taxes were up $2.5 million. Income tax revenues totaled $24,664,693 and gasoline tax revenues were $47,880,462.

General revenues, from which schools get financial support, jumped $8,652,803 to $122,350,811.

Mr. Scranton Calls For a Warmonger

By RICHARD L. GRAVES
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton said today Sen. Barry Goldwater is "playing the warmongers' game" in proposing use of military force to solve some international problems.

Scranton declared he believes Goldwater, the frontrunner for the Republican presidential nomination, "in his heart wants peace."

"Isn't he playing the warmongers' game when he proposes authorizing field commanders to use tactical nuclear weapons on their initiative; when he suggests sending Marines to capture the Guantanamo water?" he asked.

"These are reckless proposals," Scranton said. "They are the very opposite of the calm strength with which President Dwight D. Eisenhower for eight years maintained the world's peace."

Scranton returned to his attack on Goldwater after a respite Tuesday to appear before Illinois GOP convention delegates in his presidential bid.

The 58-vote delegation handed Scranton a setback—but one he said he had expected.

Despite gloom in the governor's party in the wake of the Illinois results, Scranton turned his campaign westward to woo delegations in Utah, Washington and Oregon.

Scranton said in a statement: "I do not agree with my opponent for the Republican nomination for president of the United States that within five or 10 years our country is going to be in a 'real nuclear war' or else be subjugated without war."

"I have not given up on freedom," said Scranton. "I have not given up on America and I have not given up on maintaining the peace of the world."

The Illinois delegation came out of a day-long meeting Tuesday, giving 48 of its 58 votes to Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. Eight delegates remained uncommitted. Two declined to make a choice.

Scranton and Goldwater each had met with the delegation for an hour.

Scranton said his strategy in Illinois was aimed more at public reaction. The point, he said, was to arouse the public, who in turn would influence the Illinois group before it casts the first ballot at San Francisco.

Rights Bill to Be Signed at Least by 4th

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House votes Thursday on the revised civil rights bill. Overwhelming approval is expected which would send the measure to President Johnson for a symbolic July 4th signing ceremony.

Tuesday night, a pro-civil rights bloc on the House Rules Committee, by a 10-5 vote, cleared the 126-page bill for House floor action.

The House approved the original version on Feb. 10 by a vote of 290 to 130. House members now will vote on the Senate version of the bill.

The idea of a Fourth of July signing ceremony moved a Rules Committee member, Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., to declare "I think it would be a desecration."

Another Southerner, Rep. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., D-La., predicted that the civil rights bill and the racial issue "is going to be the issue whether you want it or not" in the November presidential election.

"The Democratic party hoped for a me-too Republican candidate, so the line never would be drawn," he said. "Now it appears that it won't be a me-too candidate, and the line is going to be sharply drawn."

He mentioned no names. But Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, front-runner for the GOP nomination, voted against the civil rights bill in the Senate and said parts of it were unconstitutional.

The bill was not changed in any basic way in the Senate. Its 11 sections include bans on discrimination in public accommodations, employment and federally aided programs.

It gives the attorney general power to speed desegregation of public schools, parks and playgrounds, and to help individuals secure equal protection of the law.

Comeback in Viet Nam Seen by Mr. Lodge

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge declared today that the "downward spiral" in the anti-Communist war in South Viet Nam has been stopped.

He said "we will win" if the United States and the South Vietnamese persist in carrying out realistic political and military policies.

In his first major speech since returning from Saigon Monday, after resigning as ambassador, Lodge pictured the greatest threat to this confident outlook as an increase in "hostile outside pressures" from the Communist side.

If these pressures grow too great, he said in an address prepared for the National Press Club, then "we may be forced to take other actions to deal with the new threat."

Lodge did not spell out what additional steps might be employed against Communist forces in Southeast Asia. There has been considerable talk from U.S. officials in recent weeks about possibly carrying the war to North Viet Nam by air strikes, but he did not mention that.

He did say, however, that one kind of "outside pressures" can come from neighboring land used as a "sanctuary" from which Viet Nam can be attacked and the Communist Viet Cong forces given assistance "with impunity."

"Obviously," Lodge said, "when one is engaged in a life-and-death struggle, such a 'sanctuary' must not go on forever." But he added: "It should be possible to deal with this problem by peaceful means."

Lodge declared the United States "must work for effective supervision" of South Viet Nam's borders with North Viet Nam, Cambodia, and Laos to stop the Communists from violating them in moving supplies and reinforcements into South Viet Nam and in making attacks on that country.

He said proper supervision of the borders is essential for ending aggression in Viet Nam and for achieving peace in Southeast Asia. He did not say how the supervision might be achieved. There has been speculation that the United States might ask the United Nations to undertake the task.

Lodge devoted his prepared address entirely to a report on the conflict in Viet Nam. He served there as ambassador for 10 months before his decision two weeks ago to come home and help Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton in his fight against Sen. Barry Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination.

Lodge warned Americans against becoming discouraged about the struggle in Southeast Asia, declaring that they should emulate the "mol-like patience" of the Communists in what he said will be a long struggle.

"If we and the Vietnamese persist in carrying out realistic political and military policies, we will win—provided the hostile outside pressures stay as they were about last summer,"

Goldwater, although elated over the outcome, would not claim the nomination was wrapped up.

Goldwater said he thought he has "maybe 690" delegates, or 35 more than required for the nomination, but added he would like a bigger insurance margin.

An Associated Press survey showed Tuesday that Goldwater now has 705 committed, instructed, pledged or favorable delegates, which is 50 more than needed for the nomination — if none of the delegates stray.

Goldwater's closest pursuer, the survey showed, is Scranton with 141 delegates.

Thinks Faubus in Long Enough

BOONEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Warren Liebling of Pine Bluff, representing Winthrop Rockefeller at a political rally here Tuesday night, said electing a man to office for six or ten terms is "not the American way of life."

Gov. Orval E. Faubus' representative, George Jernigan of Little Rock, said the state "doesn't want to be a branch of Winrock Enterprises." He referred to the business enterprises of the Republican candidate for governor.

Odell Dorsey and Joe Hubbard, in the Democratic primary race against Faubus, both spoke at the rally.

Dorsey reviewed his request for information from the state Highway Commission on its decisions to hire firms to plan Arkansas research.

He has charged that out-of-state firms get most of the work and that the commission refuses to give him access to information.

Hubbard said it "is time to return integrity to government and the government to the people."

Congressmen Want $10,000 Increase Included in $564 Million Federal Pay Hike Bill

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of a proposed $7,500 floor debate on a $564-million federal pay hike bill.

Sponsors of the legislation said they were confident they could beat off any major amendments, including those aimed at the congressional boost.

They said that if the House could go along with this increase, when all of its members are up for election this year, the Senate should be able to do so without difficulty. Only one-third of the senators must face the voters this fall.

The bill covers about 1.7 million classified civil service and postal workers and also all federal executives and U.S. judges as well as senators and representatives.

President Johnson has been pushing hard for prompt action on the measure, asserting the executive raises are essential to retain key personnel in his administration.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told a reporter he would like to see the bill amended to give a $10,000 raise to members of Congress, the same as that which would be granted Cabinet members.

He conceded that the chances for this seemed to be slim. Congressmen are now paid $22,500 annually.

Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, pledged a fight to knock out the congressional increases, arguing that a one-third pay raise was not justified.

Abandon Search for Woman

NEW YORK (AP) — The Coast Guard has abandoned a two-day search for Britt Sullivan, 29, who reportedly disappeared Sunday, the fifth day of her attempt to swim to Europe.

Planes, cutters and helicopters of the Coast Guard searched the Atlantic Ocean off Long Island but found no trace of her. She had failed to rendezvous with an escort boat.

U.S. Oarsmen in English Competition

By JOHN GALE

Associated Press Writer

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — American oarsmen at the ancient and unchanging Henley Royal Regatta set out today over a tranquil stretch of the River Thames to end a four-year slump in U.S. fortunes.

Not since 1960, when a Harvard lightweight eight carried off the Thames Cup, has the United States won a Henley title.

With the Russians in the lists and British crews still on the crest of a national revival, a return to winning form appears to be giving Uncle Sam an uphill fight.

The four-day regatta — the oldest biggest and most tradition-laden in the world — is now in its 125th year.

Henley — a big occasion on the English social calendar — brings out both the debs and the dedicated. There are women in flowery hats and old rowing enthusiasts in college blazers and straw boaters.

The racing, however, is always high caliber. The crews row two at a time over a 1-mile, 550-yard course set between booms 80 feet apart. Passing the packed enclosures at the finish is a major test of an oarsman's dignity. Can he still keep his head up?

America's main aspirations rest on the Harvard junior varsity crew, entered for the senior event of the regatta — the Grand Challenge Cup.

The Americans meet a Soviet eight in the first round Thursday and have already been made underdogs.

America's best chance for a title may be in the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup, where U.S. schoolboy crews will be rowing for the first time against their British equivalents.

The four American entries are Phillips Academy, Phillips Exeter Academy, Groton and Washington-Lee High School.

House Votes Today on Foreign Aid

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House votes today on the $3.3-billion foreign aid appropriations bill with Rep. Otto E. Passman set to make a last-ditch attempt to cut the measure.

The Louisiana Democrat, who has led successful efforts to trim aid measures year after year, will try to cut the present bill to $3 billion before the final House vote.

Unlike years past, however, Passman will not have the support of the House Appropriations Committee, which has a new chairman, Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex.

Mahon asked the House Tuesday to support President Johnson in his first full fiscal year.

But Passman, in a speech with sweeping gestures, said, "I have no ax to grind. I'm very fond of my President. But you and I know he doesn't know anything about this bill."

So far, Johnson has been unusually successful with the bill, which often has been shredded in the appropriation stage. The votes today, however, will be the most crucial so far in the long legislative process that foreign aid moves through every year.

Man to Trial on Charge of Rape

DANVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A jury of 12 men was picked here Tuesday to try Robert Victor Schieck Jr., 40, of Russellville on a charge of raping a 20-year-old Dover woman.

Thirty-three were rejected before the jury was picked and testimony began in the afternoon.

The woman, who had won a talent contest at Dover, alleged that Schieck attacked her near Lake Nimrod and near Mt. Nebo.

Schieck has been held without bond. He and his wife have filed a damage suit against the Dover woman, charging defamation of character. The suit seeks $30,000 damages.

Farewell to Poles by RFK Is Tearful

By EUGENE KRAMER

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's visit to Poland ended today with a noisy, tearful farewell from hundreds of Poles and a cold shoulder from the Communist government.

Before leaving for London, en route to the United States, he issued a statement to newsmen urging "the reconciliation of Eastern and Western Europe in association with the United States" as "the only sure guarantee against nuclear war, whether by design or accident."

Except for low-ranking aides and security people, no Polish officials saw Kennedy, his wife, and three of their children off at the airport. Although Kennedy's visit was private, he had been met on his arrival last Saturday by Ambassador Eugeniusz Mlnikiel of the Foreign Ministry.

The government was understood to be irritated at Kennedy's series of stump-style speeches to street crowds and his visit to Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Roman Catholic primate of Poland, against the advice of government officials.

Several hundred oles outside Kennedy's hotel repeated the ovals he has received the past few days. They serenaded him with a chorus of "May you live 100 years" as he climbed again to the roof of his sedan.

At the airport, Kennedy got out of his car to shake hands with almost everyone standing in a crowd of 150 outside the fence. Two old women broke into tears. One kissed his hand and he patted her cheek.

Kennedy's departure brought the first appearance of pickets during his visit. Both at the hotel and beside the plane were men with placards in Polish reading "In the name of peace, don't give nuclear weapons to West Germany" and "Why doesn't the government of the United States recognize our frontiers on the Oder and the Neisse?"

Kennedy shook hands with the pickets at the airport and gave

Clarksville Also Reports Bears

CLARKSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Residents report that one or more black bears have been paying visits to the area in the last few days.

Edward Lepel who lives about 1 1/2 miles west of here, heard something outside his home Monday, and when he investigated found a black bear in the back of his pickup truck.

Lepel said the bear sighted him and calmly left the truck. A piece of paper flew by the bear as he was leaving, Lepel said, and the bear stood up. Lepel, who is 5-foot-8, said the bear was almost as tall as he was.

Late Saturday Mrs. Charles Groves said a black bear sat for at least 30 minutes behind her home 4 miles northeast of here. She said her family and the bear watched each other through a glass double door.

The state Game and Fish Commission killed a wild bear Monday east of Hot Springs after they were unable to capture it using tranquilizer darts.

Faubus Change Headquarters

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Orval E. Faubus, whose campaign headquarters have been claimed by urban renewal, have headquarters in the Manning Hotel here.

It was learned today some employees would move to the headquarters next week.

Faubus' last three campaign headquarters were in a building in the same block. The building has been sold to the federal government. A convention center will be built there.

The governor has been in his office for several days planning his campaign. He is scheduled to get into full swing today with speeches at El Dorado and Strong. On Saturday he goes to Trumann, Caraway, Fla., Marmaduke, Piggott, Corning.

$100 Waiting for That Bald Eagle

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — If you can tell a bald eagle from a red-tailed hawk, you still have a chance to win $100.

That's the prize offered by the Audubon Society to anyone who finds a bald eagle nest in Arkansas.

The original deadline for finding a nest and qualifying for the prize was June 15, but none was found. The society decided to continue the offer through the nesting season which continues into August.

Cleveland Cabler of Little Rock, a member of the Audubon Society, said interest in the search has been high, especially among teen-agers, but the most of the "finds" have been nests of red-tailed hawks.

Cabler said the eagles usually begin nesting about March and about four months later the newly hatched eaglets are ready to fly.

Scranton Hopes Ike Will Aid Him

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. William W. Scranton's supporters, rebuffed in Illinois, clung to the hope today that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower would help prevent Barry Goldwater from getting the top presidential nomination.

Henry Cabot Lodge, who came home from his ambassadorial post in South Viet Nam with the avowed intention of promoting Scranton's candidacy had another opportunity to make a case for the Pennsylvania governor before a National Press Club luncheon audience today.

But all that Lodge reported after a 45-minute conference with the former president at Walter Reed Hospital Tuesday was the hope that the general would announce his preference for the nomination by the time he goes to the San Francisco convention on July 12.

Lodge conceded, in a hospital steps news conference, that he was being somewhat mysterious in saying that he was "on the whole, happy" with his conversation with Eisenhower.

The cold political facts were that Goldwater nailed down 48 of the 58 Illinois votes in a poll of the delegation after he and Scranton had appeared separately before the delegates.

None of them lined up with Scranton.

An Associated Press survey now credits Goldwater with 705 of the 1,308 convention delegates — 50 more than the 655 needed for nomination if he holds them.

The survey shows 118 delegates committed to Goldwater by primary election laws, 257 instructed by state or district conventions, 62 personally pledged to him and 268 who favor him but are not bound or pledged to him.

Scranton, according to the survey, has 141 first-ballot votes — none of them bound to him.

Lodge said he couldn't give any details of his discussion with Eisenhower on political matters.

Asked if Eisenhower — whom he helped nudge into the 1952 successful race for the GOP nomination—had mentioned him as a possible substitute for Scranton to buck Goldwater, Lodge replied that the subject didn't even come up.

Perfect Game
Players Put Out Quickly

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Jim Bunning of Philadelphia, one of the few men to pitch a perfect game, and Ken Johnson of Houston, one of the few to lose a no-hitter, faced each other.
So, who came closer to perfection?
Larry Jackson of the Chicago Cubs.
The Bunning-Johnson duel failed to materialize at Houston Tuesday night. Bunning lost his bid for a perfect game in the first inning and Johnson never survived it—the victim of three errors that led to five runs and an 8-1 Philadelphia victory.
At Chicago, however, Jackson had a perfect game for six innings against Cincinnati and admitted he had started thinking seriously of a no-hitter.
“For the first time in my life I really felt I had a chance,” said Jackson. “The thought which raced through my mind was that I could do it if I went through the order one more time.”
He couldn't get past the next batter. Pete Rose, leading off the seventh, ripped a slider into center field for a single. That was it for the Reds, however. Jackson set the final nine men down in order, winning 1-0 over Joey Jay, who was touched for only two hits.

“I threw Rose a slider down low,” Jackson explained, “but it was through the middle and I imagine he guessed with me.” Jackson's one-hitter made him the sixth 10-game winner in the National League and put him in an exclusive group of seven NL pitchers who have hurled no-hitters or one-hitters this season, surpassing the entire 1963 total.
San Francisco's Gaylord Perry also turned in a shutout, blanking the New York Mets 5-0 on three hits as the Giants remained one-half game in front of the Phillies. Milwaukee edged St. Louis 5-4 in the only other game scheduled.
In the American League, the New York Yankees swept a doubleheader from the Los Angeles Angels 4-0 and 3-2, Minnesota defeated Baltimore 3-1, Chicago's White Sox clubbed Cleveland 12-3, Kansas City edged Boston 2-1 and Washington beat Detroit 6-5.
Bunning, knocked out in his last start Friday, posted his first victory since June 21, perfect game against the New York Mets by checking the Colts on five hits. Any thoughts of another perfect game left after the leadoff batter drew a walk and any prospects of a no-hitter disappeared when Nellie Johnson, meanwhile, never had a chance. Walt Bond dropped a fly ball hit by the Phillies' leadoff batter, Tony Taylor, and later in the inning added a throwing error while Joe Giamberini dropped a fly ball in the Phillies' five-run burst. Bunning, now 8-2, chased Johnson, 6-7, with a two-run single that wrapped up the rally.

Jackson, 10-5, allowed only five balls to be hit to the outfield as he outdueled Jay, 4-4. Jay became the loser when the Cubs scored in the sixth on a walk to Dick Bertell, Jackson's sacrifice and a single by Jimmy Stewart.
Perry retired 19 consecutive Mets at one stretch, brought his record to 6-3 and lowered his earned run average to 1.65 as the Giants won their 10th game in the last 12. Perry received home run support from Orlando Cepeda and Tom Haller.
Hank Aaron collected four hits for the Braves, including a homer, before pinch hitter Ty Cline clinched it for Milwaukee with a two-run homer in the eighth. It was Cline's first homer of the season and tagged Cardinal reliever Roger Craig with the loss.

Chisox Romp
on Indians;
Yanks Sweep

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Mrs. Doubleday's little boy Abner decided the game ought to be played with three outs in every inning. Cleveland pitchers would be all right if they needed only two.
The Indians' staff wasn't having much trouble getting those first two outs Tuesday night against Chicago. The 12-3 White Sox romp came while the Indian staff was chasing that elusive third one.
Cleveland owned a 1-0 lead through four innings but with two out and two on in the fifth, the roof fell in. Three hits, a hit batsmen and a walk later the White Sox had seven runs. Then came out No. 3.
There were two out and a man on second in the sixth when three White Sox hits produced three more runs. And in the seventh, an error, two hits and a walk accounted for Chicago's final two runs—all after two were out.
The hitting heroes for the White Sox were Gerry McNertney, whose grand slam homer climaxed the seven run fifth, and Pete Ward who rapped three hits, driving in two runs. Ron Hansen also drove in a pair with two hits.
Juan Pizarro went the distance, winning his 10th although touched for John Romano's two-run homer.
In other AL action Tuesday, New York swept a two-night doubleheader from Los Angeles 4-0 and 3-2, Minnesota topped Baltimore 3-1, Washington edged Detroit 6-5 and Kansas City nipped Boston 2-1.
In the National League, Chicago blanked Cincinnati 1-0 on Larry Jackson's one-hitter, Milwaukee whipped St. Louis 5-4, San Francisco shut out New York 5-0 and Philadelphia beat Houston 8-1.
The White Sox shelled four Indian pitchers for 13 hits, 10

Oklahomans

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Big John Booser recorded his fourth full-game victory in five starts as the Arkansas Travelers won a 13-inning Pacific Coast League baseball game 5-4 over Oklahoma City here Tuesday night.
The winning run came on a sacrifice fly by Pat Corrales.
The Oklahoma City loss dropped the 89ers into second place in the Eastern Division of the PCL, and left Arkansas in third, two games behind leading Denver.
The 89ers started the scoring in the fifth with three runs. Jim Wynn and Joe Wooten singled; Jim Mahoney brought in Wynn with a double, and Ernie Fazio sent Wooten and Mahoney home with another two-bagger.
Arkansas charged back in the bottom of the fifth with four runs. Norm Gigon brought in two runs with a homer, and Howie Goss singled in two more. The four runs came off Oklahoma City starter George Burnet.
Oklahoma City knotted the score in the seventh when Mahoney scored on a sacrifice fly by Glen Vaughan.
In the 13th inning, Vaughan muffed a grounder by Alex Johnson and Adolfo Phillips beat out a grounder to third. Howie Goss bunted, and everyone was safe, loading the bases.
Lee Elia popped out, and then Corrales delivered the game-winning fly.

There Is a Business End to Labor

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer

There is a business end to labor, too.

Labor unions are essentially businesses and they take their business seriously.

"Our business is to see to it that working men get a fair wage and fair working conditions," a union leader said.

But how does a union do it? The Associated Press surveyed a number of unions in Arkansas with about 30,000 members in the state and tried to learn the answer.

"I guess the strike is the first thing that most people think about," said R. L. Webb, an international vice president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. "But not every union strikes."

"We don't even like to strike," he said. "In fact, the IBEW is practically a no-strike organization. It's in our agreements with companies. We agree not to strike or walkout or lockout."

Webb said occasionally there is a wildcat—or unauthorized—strike by some union members, "but we don't go in for that much."

"We have almost always found, and we believe we can continue, that we can work out our problems around the table," Webb said.

The IBEW has some branches that do strike, but the majority of members — those involved in construction work — Rarely strike, Webb said.

Webb estimated that the union has 9,000 members in Arkansas. They pay dues of about $6.40 a month, part of which goes into a "strike fund."

If a strike is necessary, Webb said, union members receive allowances from this fund for the duration of the strike.

In some unions, this fund is called the "defense fund."

It is, union leaders said, a way of giving meaning to the union's attitude at the arbitration table.

"It will provide support for union members if they have to called the 'defense fund.'"

It is, union leaders said, a way of giving meaning to the union's attitude at the arbitration table.

"It will provide support for union members if they have to go on strike," one said.

"How much does a striker get from this fund?"

The amounts ranged from $15 a week to $30 a week.

The International Association for Machinists, with about 4,500 members in Arkansas, provides strike relief of $25 a week to each member who is on strike.

"That isn't much," said James C. Rhew an IAM business manager, "but the money isn't supposed to take the place of a man's income. It's just enough to get him by with the bare essentials."

The IAM makes no provisions for providing extra money for members with large families.

"It's a case where we

A SERVE-YOURSELF MEAL FOR INFORMAL DINING

It's summer . . . and as the days become warmer, the family takes to the outdoors, and meals become more informal. While everyone participates in the softball or badminton game, mother can prepare this serve-yourself meal in minutes.

It will look mighty enticing inside or out. To satisfy those healthy appetites . . . delicious bowls of asparagus-gumbo soup are in order. The tasty soup is quickly prepared by combining canned condensed asparagus and chicken gumbo soups. Soup is ever so refreshing after heavy summer activities.

Next come make-your-own-salads. Put out an attractive tray of cucumbers, greens, tomatoes, and some cottage cheese. Come back for dessert . . . peaches and strawberries and brownies. Have iced tea, too.

Asparagus-Gumbo Bowl

1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of asparagus soup
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed chicken gumbo soup
1½ soup cans water
In saucepan, blend soups and water. Heat, but do not boil. Stir now and then. Makes 4 servings.

unionize the man — not his family," Rhew said.

But other unions make allowances for the number of dependents a member has. The International Association of Pulp, Sulphite and Papermill Workers is one.

"Each case is handled individually," said Wayne Glenn, a representative of the IAPSP, "taking into consideration the man's needs, situation, number of dependents."

The pulp, sulphite and papermill workers union has about 3,500 members in Arkansas, Glenn said. The members pay a minimum of $2 a month in dues, but usually between $3.50 and $4, he said.

Unions have different ways of qualifying a man for membership. Usually, he must be an employee of a plant where the union has bargaining rights, and must be a capable employee.

Most unions have apprentice programs, and most of these require four years of training to bring men along to the journeyman, level and union membership.

The efforts to build membership and the expansion of a fund to support members if they strike are defensive tactics, union leaders said.

"It's a little like the cold war," one said. "If we have to strike or fight the war, then what we've been trying to do hasn't worked out."

Since Henry Cabot Lodge has been so apt at campaigning from far-off Viet Nam, the other candidates might go way off and save the voters from listening to long political speeches.

"DEAR ABBY"

HE AIN'T HAPPY!

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: My very lovely sister-in-law is an art student, and she has just entered her broad brush syndrome. Her oils resemble an explosion in a paint factory. She is now doing a portrait of my wife, and we both agree that it is an atrocity. When it is finished, must I hang it in the living room and suffer an aesthetic jolt every time I set eyes on it? Or should I risk a family donnybrook and send it to the attic, where it clearly belongs?

APPALED

Dear Appalled: Prop it up somewhere downstairs for a reasonable length of time, then banish it to the attic. If the artist complains, tell her you couldn't bear to hang your wife in the living room.

band and I give a party, our invitations are "RSVP", which everyone knows requires an answer. We have about six or seven couples with whom we are quite friendly. Some of them assume that just because we are so close they need not respond. We are just supposed to "know" that they will be there. Abby, I am so tired of having to call up half a dozen of invited guests the night of a party whether they are coming or not. We had the same problem when our daughter was married last summer. About a dozen of our relatives felt so "close" that they didn't think it was necessary to let us know that they were coming. Please state in your column the legitimate reasons one may use for ignoring an "RSVP".

READY TO SCREAM

Dear Ready As I know, there is NO "legitimate" reason to ignore an RSVP. Even in illness, one can always have a telephone call made, expressing regrets.

Dear Abby A few years ago, when our teen-age son was unable to find summer work, we let him paint our house rather than contracting the job to regular painters. We made arrangements with a neighborhood painter not only to supply the materials but also to provide him with instructions and periodic inspections and corrections. The result was amazing! In addition to spending a useful summer, our son earned money, and his paint job was first-class.

BOILING OVER

Dear Boiling: Your husband apparently feels that his mother eagerly anticipates a Mother's Day gift, and would avoid disappointing her—even though he disapproves of the idea generally. If you think he is discriminating, and it bugs you, tell him! Or would you rather just go on "boiling"?

July a Month of Decision Economically

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—July may become a month of decision in crucial sectors of the American economy.

On trial are the government's guidelines for labor wage scales and management pricing policies.

The extent of the slump in steel output may give a better clue to the real strength of the factors feeding the business upswing.

The trends of retail sales and consumer debt this month may finally tell the story about how Americans are reacting to the federal income tax cut. At issue: steady and calm growth, or quick boom and inflation.

The reaction to the civil rights bill, once signed, may foreshadow what's in store for the nation. Business has a big stake, both in what turmoil could do to trade and in how individual firms must realign policies to meet employment, sales, promotion and production policies and pressures.

The wage-price guidelines will get their most dramatic test this month in Detroit in the auto industry.

The government's controversial guidelines are designed to suggest in a general way the limits of wage increases and price advances that can be reached without upsetting the general price structure and setting off once more the old wage-price spiral that became the badge of inflation in the early postwar years.

In some industries, prices already have been creeping up—so far without setting off a general rise. Management in still others is talking of price increases if competitive conditions improve enough in coming weeks and months to make such hikes stick.

Labor leaders always watch the trends set by auto negotiations. And business this time more than ever eyes the Detroit talks for clues of what they may expect.

Steel isn't negotiating this summer. But if this proves wrong, the depths of the steel cycle may reveal just how strong is the over-all demand that is counted on to pull most industries to impressive heights after Labor Day.

There will be more things hot than just the weather. Civil rights, election campaigns, and attitudes of consumer, management and labor—all may heat up this month to spoil any anticipations that it's just a time for a sweet siesta.

The front line of the war on poverty could be the doorsteps of the taxpayers.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jean Rue rules his realm with a soft voice and a wooden spoon. He is the chef of the Musso and Frank Grill, the oldest and still the best restaurant on the boulevard.

In gentle gallic tones M. Rue wheedles from tradesmen the most qualitative of provender for his kitchen. With his spoon he tastes the concoctions of his assistant chefs, bestowing a nod and a few French words of commendation.

Rue has lived in the aromatic world of Musso and Frank's for 42 years. When he first came to the restaurant, Hollywood was a village with unpaved side streets. The growing movie society was centered on the boulevard.

"They all used to come here," the chef recalled. "Rudolph Valentino was a regular customer; he loved the Italian spaghetti. Charlie Chaplin had lunch here almost every day; his favorite was the boiled lamb with caper sauce. There were many others—Douglas Fairbanks, Bebe Daniels, Alan Hale. I remember when Hale first brought in his little boy—the boy who is an actor today."

Hollywood grew, and restaurants proliferated. The movie crowd moved to Beverly Hills and the San Fernando Valley. But Musso and Frank's continued. While the younger set prefers flashier places, the boulevard landmark is still a favorite with film veterans, and especially with writers, press agents and advertising men.

Musso and Frank's was only three years old when Jean Rue arrived in February 1922. The founders have long since passed from the scene but Rue continues his guardianship of the kitchen.

A native of Limoges, France,

Rue served two years of apprenticeship in the old country before graduating to Maxime's on La Rue. After cooking on the French Line, he landed in New York, then the Ambassador Hotel here.

A smallish man of 66 years, he has a brush mustache and a lean figure despite a lifetime of intimacy with food.

Nothing much riles M. Rue, but he does express dismay over the way Americans eat.

"The gourmet has almost disappeared," he lamented. "Americans are too much in a hurry. In Europe the people spend one hour, two hours, even three hours over the midday meal. They know how to enjoy food."

The Department of Agriculture says there's only one kind of potato regardless of where grown, but the man who eats regularly in a restaurant knows better. There are two kinds, baked and french fries.

Television and Radio

EDITOR'S NOTE—Dave Garroway, whose life three years ago was shattered by a personal tragedy, stepped out of a successful television career for a period of re-evaluation. Now he is returning to broadcasting with a daily radio show on CBS' New York flagship station. Today, he writes as AP television-radio writer, who is on vacation.

By DAVE GARROWAY

Dear Cynthia,

Delighted to be a guest columnist. I have your note and it says the column should say what the last three years have meant to me—in 500 words and keep it brief.

A great girl singer we both know announced a while ago that she was planning to divorce her husband. One of her friends said, "After all, you've been married for 11 years now. Why, after 11 years, would you want to divorce him?" The girl singer said, "If you've got 11 years to listen, I'll tell you why."

I know how she feels, but I did learn one thing of great use to me—and maybe to your readers.

I used to say to myself, "Garroway, when you buy a new household appliance or a new tool, with it is a printed set of operating instructions. If you keep those instructions handy and observe them, you'll get the best service and it won't be laid up in the shop for repairs very often.

"I shall write down the operating rules that make me work best."

I spent a good many years collecting the instructions, finally narrowing them down to these few:

1. "He who ignores the lessons of history is condemned to relive it."

2. "This above all, to thine own self be true."

3. "First in the art of living is not to be delicate about money."

I'd better tell you that none of the above, I've found, is true or useful as a method by which I might safely predicate my action.

No. 1 is only true if the conditions under which the historical act occurred tend to be the same as those governing the act in which I am interested. Since it can't happen at the same time it follows that the result cannot be judged the same way.

2. I had forgotten the second part of this quote, I guess—"and it follows thou can't not be false to any man." Well, that wasn't what I was interested in so much as getting over difficult problems by believing in myself.

No. 3 is probably the best of all but I just can't do it somehow. I know if I could be less delicate about money I'd have more and I've tried but I'd rather spend the money than go

Fights Gambling, Quits Position

BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP) — Police Chief Robert L. Forchey, who has led a campaign against bingo games by fraternal organizations, has turned in his resignation.

He said he was quitting because of "harassment of his family by politically motivated persons."

The champion Yankees won their season series with the Detroit Tigers, 10 games to 8.

through the frustration of—oh, my cheeks are blushing, let's forget the whole thing about money. I don't want to talk about it, it's a very delicate subject.

At the end of three years I've torn up the operating instructions, the checklist, and put the machine into gear. I'm running wide open down the right track and let me tell you it's a pretty good feeling. I now think you go out and get things and bring them home.

The fuel that I've found to run this machine was suggested to me very casually one day by a friend. "Dave," he said, "remember there is such a thing as courage."

I don't know why that sentence worked for me; it just might for you. Try a drop in your tank and see what happens and—courage!

The decision puts integration of the city's free public kindergartens eight years ahead of a federal court-ordered grade-year plan.

Reviews Shot That Started World War I

By CARL HARTMAN

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — A crown prince with some startling political ideas—a feverish boy fanatic, manipulated from the shadows by a mysterious spymaster—shots from a little automatic.

Did they start World War I? Or would it have come anyhow, whether the Archduke Franz Ferdinand was murdered on that sunny Sunday morning 50 years ago.

Historians argue the point. Some say the rivalries of the great powers made the conflict inevitable. Others contend that European statesmen had been handling incidents like this for 40 years without a major war, and given a little less stupidity they might have handled this one too.

Some of its mysteries still are unsolved.

Start with Col. Dragutin Dimitrijevic, chief of both the Serbian military intelligence and the conspiratorial "Black Hand." His cover name was "Apis"—the bee—and 2 busier intriguer no novelist ever created.

He wanted to eliminate Franz Ferdinand, heir to the 84-year-old Emperor Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary.

Why? That's one of the mysteries. Apis said later it was because Franz Ferdinand was head of the war party in Austria-Hungary, and killing him was a way of forestalling an attack on Serbia, then an independent nation and now part of Yugoslavia.

This makes little sense. Franz Ferdinand's murder was used by the Austrians as the excuse for an attack on Serbia, and there were many more eager for war than he had been.

A better guess: Franz Ferdinand had some idea of giving his own Serb subjects more self-rule. That might have cooled off their enthusiasm for breaking loose from Austria-Hungary and joining Serbia, an enthusiasm Apis was most eager to keep warm.

Nor would it have pleased Gavril Princip, a frail but fiery Serb of 19 from Austria-Hungary's province of Serbia. Apis supplied him and his fellow conspirators with automatics and grenades, got them some target practice and had them smuggled across the border from Serbia back to Bosnia and its capital, Sarajevo.

Princip was a sensitive, idealistic young man. He had a small black moustache, some talent as a poet fair aim with an automatic and an advanced case of tuberculosis. He and his friends felt that in murdering Franz Ferdinand they were striking a blow for freedom.

"Aside from their compulsion to commit treason and murder," says an American historian, "they were really good and kindly fellows."

Their plan was simple. Franz Ferdinand, his wife and a small entourage—in Sarajevo for a civic function—were driving in six open cars along the Miljacka River, which flows through the city.

After a reception at City Hall the cars were to drive back along the river and through the main streets. The half-dozen conspirators stationed themselves at likely points along the river.

As the procession passed near the Zrinzko Bridge, a young printer named Nedjelko Cabrinovic threw a grenade. It bounced off the folded back top of the archduke's car and exploded in the street, wounding several bystanders and two of the archduke's aides in the next automobile.

The archduke's wife was scratched on the face by a splinter.

At the reception, the archduke had decided to cancel the drive through the main streets and visit one of the wounded aides in the hospital. But nobody told the chauffeurs.

The cars started back along the river. When they reached the street called Franz Josef Gasse, the driver of the lead car started to turn in toward the center of the town.

"Not that way, you fool—straight ahead!" shouted a general riding with the archduke.

The order brought the little column to a halt just in front of Moritz Schiller's fancy grocery store, where Princip was stationed. He stepped to the curb and fired at a range of less than 10 feet, killing both the archduke and his wife.

It seems ancient history now, even in Sarajevo, where the quay along the Miljacka looks much as it looked half a century ago.

The old City Hall serves as a library with an exhibit on the ground floor glorifying Yugoslav President's Tito's struggles in World War II.

Schiller's grocery has been turned into a museum which subordinates Princip to the activity of an organization called "Young Bosnia." The official feeling is that emphasis on Princip and Apis tends to saddle the guilt for World War I on the founders of Yugoslavia, and to give too much importance to the Serbs at the expense of other national groups in the country.

Princip's fame has faded in the publicity given to his nephew, Slobodan Princip, a guerrilla who died fighting the Germans in World War II. In Belgrade, a school has been named for Slobodan. There is no similar attempt to keep Gavril's memory green.

But in Sarajevo, there still are people who remember the day vividly.

One who remembers is a tall, ruddy-cheeked history teacher of 68, now retired. Vojislav Bogicevic has become the city's most devoted historian of the conspirators, several of whom were his schoolmates.

He was standing next to one—Gvijeko Popovic—when Cabrinovic threw his grenade near whether he was on the plot within a few minutes when Princip fired the fatal shots.

Bogicevic won't say now whether he was in the plot himself, but he does admit: "If they had offered me a gun, it would have been hard to refuse."

Popovic is still alive, head of the ethnographic section of the Bosnian National Museum in Sarajevo, but he refused to talk to strangers. So does another of the conspirators named Vaso Cibrilovic who—like Popovic—failed to throw his grenade. He became a professor of history, and served for a time as a member of President Tito's Cabinet.

Of the 45 players on the University of Mississippi roster two come from Alabama and one from Tennessee. The rest are from the home state.

Television and Radio

EDITOR'S NOTE—Dave Garroway, whose life three years ago was shattered by a personal tragedy, stepped out of a successful television career for a period of re-evaluation. Now he is returning to broadcasting with a daily radio show on CBS' New York flagship station. Today, he writes as a guest for Cynthia Lowry, AP television-radio writer, who is on vacation.

By DAVE GARROWAY

Dear Cynthia,

Delighted to be a guest columnist. I have your note and it says the column should say what the last three years have meant to me—in 500 words and keep it brief.

A great girl singer we both know announced a while ago that she was planning to divorce her husband. One of her friends said, "After all, you've been married for 11 years now. Why, after 11 years, would you want to divorce him?" The girl singer said, "If you've got 11 years to listen, I'll tell you why."

I know how she feels, but I did learn one thing of great use to me—and maybe to your readers.

I used to say to myself, "Garroway, when you buy a new household appliance or a new tool, with it is a printed set of operating instructions. If you keep those instructions handy and observe them, you'll get the best service and it won't be laid up in the shop for repairs very often.

"I shall write down the operating rules that make me work best."

I spent a good many years collecting the instructions, finally narrowing them down to these few:

1. "He who ignores the lessons of history is condemned to relive it."
2. "This above all, to thine own self be true."
3. "First in the art of living is not to be delicate about money."

I'd better tell you that none of the above, I've found, is true or useful as a method by which I might safely predicate my action.

No. 1 is only true if the conditions under which the historical act occurred tend to be the same as those governing the act in which I am interested. Since it can't happen at the same time it follows that the result cannot be judged the same way.

2. I had forgotten the second part of this quote. I guess—"and it follows thou can't not be false to any man." Well, that wasn't what I was interested in so much as getting over difficult problems by believing in myself.

No. 3 is probably the best of all but I just can't do it somehow. I know if I could be less delicate about money I'd have more and I've tried but I'd rather spend the money than go

Fights Gambling, Quits Position

BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP) — Police Chief Robert L. Forchey, who has led a campaign against bingo games by fraternal organizations, has turned in his resignation.

He said he was quitting because of "harassment of his family by politically motivated persons."

The champion Yankees won their season series with the Detroit Tigers, 10 games to 8.

through the frustration of—oh, my cheeks are blushing, let's forget the whole thing about money. I don't want to talk about it, it's a very delicate subject.

At the end of three years I've torn up the operating instructions, the checklist, and put the machine into gear. I'm running wide open down the right track and let me tell you it's a pretty good feeling. I now think you go out and get things and bring them home.

The fuel that I've found to run this machine was suggested to me very casually one day by a friend. "Dave," he said, "remember there is such a thing as courage."

I don't know why that sentence worked for me; it just might for you. Try a drop in your tank and see what happens and—courage!

Kindergarten to Desegregate

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Kindergarten classes will be desegregated in September, the Houston School Board has ruled.

The decision puts integration of the city's free public kindergartens eight years ahead of a federal court-ordered grade-a-year plan.

Reviews Shot That Started World War 1

By CARL HARTMAN

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — A crown prince with some startling political ideas—a feverish boy fanatic, manipulated from the shadows by a mysterious spy-master—shots from a little automatic.

Did they start World War I? Or would it have come anyhow, whether the Archduke Franz Ferdinand was murdered on that sunny Sunday morning 50 years ago.

Historians argue the point. Some say the rivalries of the great powers made the conflict inevitable. Others contend that European statesmen had been handling incidents like this for 40 years without a major war, and given a little less stupidity they might have handled this one too.

Some of its mysteries still are unsolved.

Start with Col. Dragutin Dimitrijevic, chief of both the Serbian military intelligence and the conspiratorial "Black Hand." His cover name was "Apis"—the bee—and 2 busier intriguer no novelist ever created.

He wanted to eliminate Franz Ferdinand, heir to the 84-year-old Emperor Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary.

Why? That's one of the mysteries. Apis said later it was because Franz Ferdinand was head of the war party in Austria-Hungary, and killing him was a way of forestalling an attack on Serbia, then an independent nation and now part of Yugoslavia.

This makes little sense. Franz Ferdinand's murder was used by the Austrians as the excuse for an attack on Serbia, and there were many more eager for war than he had been.

A better guess: Franz Ferdinand had some idea of giving his own Serb subjects more self-rule. That might have cooled off their enthusiasm for breaking loose from Austria-Hungary and joining Serbia, an enthusiasm Apis was most eager to keep warm.

Nor would it have pleased Gavril Princip, a frail but fiery Serb of 19 from Austria-Hungary's province of Serbia. Apis supplied him and his fellow conspirators with automatics and grenades, got them some target practice and had them smuggled across the border from Serbia back to Bosnia and its capital, Sarajevo.

Princip was a sensitive, idealistic young man. He had a small black moustache, some talent as a poet fair aim with an automatic and an advanced case of tuberculosis. He and his friends felt that in murdering Franz Ferdinand they were striking a blow for freedom.

"Aside from their compulsion to commit treason and murder" says an American historian, "they were really good and kindly fellows."

Their plan was simple. Franz Ferdinand, his wife and a small entourage—in Sarajevo for a civic function—were driving in six open cars along the Miljacka River, which flows through the city.

After a reception at City Hall the cars were to drive back along the river and through the main streets. The half-dozen conspirators stationed themselves at likely points along the river.

As the procession passed near the Zrinzko Bridge a young printer named Nedjelko Cabrinovic threw a grenade. It bounced off the folded back top of the archduke's car and exploded in the street, wounding several bystanders and two of the archduke's aides in the next automobile.

The archduke's wife was scratched on the face by a splinter.

At the reception, the archduke had decided to cancel the drive through the main streets and visit one of the wounded aides in the hospital. But nobody told the chauffeurs.

The cars started back along the river. When they reached the street called Franz Josef Gasse, the driver of the lead car started to turn in toward the center of the town.

"Not that way, you fool—straight ahead!" shouted a general riding with the archduke.

The order brought the little column to a halt just in front of Moritz Schiller's fancy grocery store, where Princip was stationed. He stepped to the curb and fired at a range of less than 10 feet, killing both the archduke and his wife.

It seems ancient history now, even in Sarajevo, where the quay along the Miljacka looks much as it looked half a century ago.

The Old City Hall serves as a library with an exhibit on the ground floor glorifying Yugoslav President's Tito's struggles in World War II.

Schiller's grocery has been turned into a museum which subordinates Princip to the activity of an organization called "Young Bosnia." The official feeling is that emphasis on Princip and Apis tends to saddle the guilt for World War I on the founders of Yugoslavia, and to give too much importance to the Serbs at the expense of other national groups in the country.

Princip's fame has faded in the publicity given to his nephew, Slobodan Princip, a guerrilla who died fighting the Germans in World War II. In Belgrade, a school has been named for Slobodan. There is no similar attempt to keep Gavril's memory green.

But in Sarajevo, there still are people who remember the day vividly.

One who remembers is a tall, ruddy-cheeked history teacher of 68, now retired. Vojislav Bogicevic has become the city's most devoted historian of the conspirators, several of whom were his schoolmates.

He was standing next to one—Cvijevic Popovic—when Cabrinovic threw his grenade near whether he was on the plot within a few minutes when Princip fired the fatal shots.

Bogicevic won't say now whether he was in the plot himself, but he does admit: "If they had offered me a gun, it would have been hard to refuse."

Popovic is still alive, head of the ethnographic section of the Bosnian National Museum in Sarajevo, but he refused to talk to strangers. So does another of the conspirators named Vaso Cubrilovic who—like Popovic—failed to throw his grenade. He became a professor of history, and served for a time as a member of President Tito's Cabinet.

Of the 45 players on the University of Mississippi roster two come from Alabama and one from Tennessee. The rest are from the home state.

I folded the paper and put it on the bar as Eddie came back. "An interesting story," I said. "It shows how dangerous it is to run a bar," he said with a smile. "I'm even surprised that Blake had a gun or could use it. He always struck me as a weak sister."

"Well, it doesn't take much strength to pull a trigger," I said. "What do you think'll happen to him?"

"He'll get off. The guy he killed was a known gangster and pulled a gun and shot at him. They'll keep the restaurant and bar closed for a few days until it's settled. That'll be all."

A tall, slender man came in. "Here's Joe now," Eddie said, nodding at the tall man. "Let's go."

"Where?"

"He smiled. 'You told me that you've been pub-crawling. Now I'm going to show you where you should have gone.'"

I finished my drink. "Where are you parked?"

"In the back."

"You go out the front door and I'll go out the back," I said. "Maybe we can avoid having company if we do that. My friend is parked out there."

I got up and walked through the back room and outdoors. A minute later Eddie came around the corner of the building.

"Where are we going?"

"A few places you tourists don't always hit," he said.

"Blake's?"

"He glanced at me. 'You want to go there, huh?'"

"I'd like to."

"We can try it. As I said, he's probably closed. But if he's there he'll let us in. Why do you want to go there?"

"The man who was killed," I said, "was a friend of the one who's following me. He worked for the same outfit. He was a professional gunman, not a hold-up man, so I'm curious."

"Okay. We'll go to Blake's."

"Blake a native son?" I asked.

"No. He came up here some time after I did. The place was owned by a woman, Carol Shores—a nice looking broad. Her husband had died a couple of years before that and she'd been running the place by herself. Blake bought a half-interest in the place and the next thing we knew they got married."

About a mile down the road, Eddie turned in. It was a neat, modern building. The sign said Blake's Inn. There was only one other car parked there. We got out and went over to the entrance. The door was locked. Eddie knocked on it and after a bit, he looked out, the man whose picture had been in the paper. He opened the door.

"Hi, Eddie," he said. "I've been closed for a few days but I guess you and your friend can come in—as long as we keep it quiet."

We followed him inside, through an attractive dining room and into a very pleasant little bar. Eddie and I perched on stools and Blake went behind the bar.

"What'll you have?" he asked.

"Scotch on the rocks," Eddie said, "and have one yourself. Tom, this is Milo March. Tom Blake."

We shook hands and he started fixing the drinks. I sat and watched him. Now that I'd seen him full face I knew he was Thomas Rako! His hair was a little thinner; he had the mustache, and he was maybe 25 pounds heavier, but that's who he was.

"Carol's lying down," he said as he brought the drinks. "The last 24 hours have been a little rough."

"I was sorry to hear about it," Eddie said. "But you ought to get through it without any trouble. I don't think the ABC can give you any trouble over it, did it?"

Blake nodded.

He kept looking at me and then looking away. I knew that since he was Rako, he would notice the gun I was carrying.

"I guess he was after the safe," Blake said.

"He must've thought it would be an easy touch and he was drunk. I was lucky." Suddenly his gaze fixed on me and he was no longer the shy, fat man I'd seen in the newspaper picture.

"You from around here, March?"

"No," I said. "I'm from the city. You might say this is a sort of vacation."

His gaze shifted to my left shoe.

under. "Oh? What do you do when you're not vacationing?"

"I'm not a cop," I said quickly. "The pay's too small."

"Who do you work for?" Blake asked.

"Myself," I said. I smiled at him. "You might say I'm a sportsman. I heard that this was a good place to come."

"There's some good shooting around here," he said laconically. "How's business, Eddie?"

"Lousy," Eddie said.

Civilian Move Worrisome to Officers

By RALEIGH ALLSBROOK

NEW YORK (AP)—Auxiliary police perform vital services in many cities, but a growing civilian patrol movement is causing police concern here.

"We feel they are complicating the problem," a Police Department spokesman said. "We can't let amateurs take over police work."

A Jewish group began a car patrol plan recently in Brooklyn in an effort to curb a rising number of attacks by hoodlums. The wife of a rabbi had been dragged from her home and raped.

The group's members now include both whites and Negroes and a number of religions are represented. Radio cars patrol the Crown Heights section from dusk to dawn.

Most large cities have civilian auxiliary police units, but operating under regular police jurisdiction.

Regular police generally train the units, uniforms of both usually are similar. In some cases, the auxiliary members are armed. Often they work without pay.

Much of their work is devoted to parade, park, traffic and similar assignments that keep them away from violence.

The Brooklyn group, called the Community Safety Patrol, operates independently and has resisted police efforts to have it join the police auxiliary.

When trouble develops, police are notified.

"There is no action we can take against them because they are not violating the law," the police spokesman said.

Los Angeles has two reserve police units, a city police group of 110 and 1,120 men with the county sheriff's office.

About half of the sheriff's reservists pair with regular officers in patrol cars, work in jails, and perform jobs similar to those of full-time deputies. Others serve on mountain rescue teams and in the sheriff's mounted posse.

They come from various walks of life and join for different reasons.

In New York, author Max Wyllie patrols in Central Park two nights a week as part of the city's auxiliary police force.

His 21-year-old daughter, Janice, and her roommate, Emily Hoffer, were slain in their East Side apartment last year and Wyllie says he is determined to do everything possible to prevent similar tragedies.

New York has an auxiliary force of 3,816 persons, but they have no more authority than civilians. The Central Park precinct is the only one in which they normally are sent out on patrol duty.

Portland, Ore., has nearly 500 auxiliary policemen to help its 650 regular officers. A bad windstorm hit the city on Columbus Day in 1962 and within an hour 150 auxiliary workers were on duty.

"We'd be hard put to get along without them," said Lt. Thomas W. Simmons, a regular policeman assigned to the group as liaison officer.

In Philadelphia, auxiliaries patrol the streets on weekends, help in parades, conventions and do traffic and other work. Police credit them with helping to cut down on robberies and muggings.

U.S. Draws Line in Asia at a Time When the Chinese War Ability Is in Tailspin

By FRED HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is drawing the line in Southeast Asia at a time when Red China's ability to fight a major modern war is in a tailspin.

China's worn-out air force is starved for spare parts and new planes to replace a jet fleet that is largely of Korean War vintage.

Her army, huge in manpower, is strapped for up-to-date tanks and short on artillery.

There are serious scarcities of fuel to run the planes, tanks and vehicles that China does have.

Red China's military deterioration set in about four years ago when the growing ideological dispute with the Soviet Union led Moscow to shut off supplies and technical help to China.

One effect of this has been to set back the day when China can explode her first atom bomb.

The Soviet-Chinese split seemingly has deepened and the prospect that the Soviet Union will resume arming China is considered remote.

U.S. officials regard as significant Moscow's recent warning to Red China that she should no longer count on Soviet backing in a crisis.

Some high officials believe this Soviet action was a direct result of repeated U.S. warnings that it is ready to risk war with China to keep Southeast Asia from falling under Communist domination.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has said it will be "many, many years" before Red China is a first-class power.

This evaluation, based on solid intelligence information, is a main underpinning for the new U.S. "hard line" toward China.

There is an awareness that China could feel forced to call this country's hand.

She could, as she did in Korea, send hordes of men rolling into Southeast Asia.

The latest intelligence reports show no evidence of any Chinese massing of forces in South China, sources said.

But the United States has no intention of getting into a ground war with China unless there is no other way out.

What this country would do, officials have indicated in private, is to apply its massive air power. China's obsolescent air force would be virtually helpless to halt such an assault.

If China infiltrated the jungles of Laos and Viet Nam in a guerrilla offensive on a big scale, it would be hard to halt such a surge on the ground.

But U.S. aircraft could be expected to hit hard at the sources of supply and reinforcement in China, at highways and railroads, if necessary at industrial centers and bases deeper in the country.

Even withholding its great nuclear power, this country's air force and its potent naval air arm could drive home devastating blows.

U.S. intelligence has pinpointed a series of military bases and a vast network of roads and railways radiating from South China's Yunnan Province toward North Viet Nam and Burma.

Available Marine and Army strength in the Western Pacific is too thin to undertake a major, sustained ground war.

The main U.S. force of this kind in that general area is a Marine Division on Okinawa, including a battalion landing team aloft with the U. S. 7th Fleet in Asian waters, plus an Army airborne brigade on Okinawa.

There are two Army Divisions in South Korea, but these are pinned down by the ever-present threat from Red North Korea.

On Hawaii, the 25th Infantry Division stands ready as the theater reserve.

The United States has vastly improved its airlift in recent years and reinforcements, including a Marine division on the West Coast and Army troops from the United States, could be flown across the Pacific.

But the movement of the heavy gear that makes these divisions potent striking forces would have to go by ship, and that takes many days.

Some heavy equipment is stockpiled in Thailand, on Okinawa and aboard three depot ships in the Philippines, but not nearly enough for a truly major ground operation.

This country's aces in the game are nearly 8,000 military planes in the Pacific, plus the 125 ships of the 7th Fleet ranged along the Asian Coast.

U.S. Warplanes—most of them far faster, far more maneuverable, and far more heavily armed than the Chinese—can strike at China from bases on Okinawa, Formosa, the Philippines, South Viet Nam, Thailand—and Japan, although political considerations might prevent this.

The 7th Fleet has three big carriers from which Marine and Navy fighters and bombers could be launched against the mainland.

This is what the Chinese have, based on intelligence reports:

An air force of about 2,400 planes, mostly elderly fighters—MIG15s and MIG17s. As much as half of this force reportedly has been immobilized by a shortage of fuel and a need to take parts from some planes to keep others flying. Some medium and long-range bombers and a few transports. The 75,000 air force men include about 10,000 pilots who aren't rated very

Top Batters on American Loop Lineup

By BOB HOOBING

Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The top nine batters in the American League are on the All-Star squad completed except for pitchers and announced today by President Joe Cronin.

Al Kaline, a terror in past mid-season classics, was prominent among the latest additions.

Manager Al Lopez, as did National pilot Walter Alston, followed the players' balloting down the line in naming their second choices. Lopez also added first baseman-outfielder Joe Mauer of the New York Yankees "because he can play two positions."

Lopez will complete selection of an eight-man pitching staff, to be announced Wednesday night. The game will be played July 7 at New York's Shea Stadium.

Chicago, now in third place but in the thick of the pennant fight all season, failed to place a man among the 17 non-pitchers, so did Cleveland and Kansas City. Since all teams have to be represented, Lopez must consider that factor in his pitching picks.

Detroit dominates the additions made today with catcher Bill Freehan and second baseman Jerry Lumpe joining outfielder Kaline who has been selected for the 10th time—second only to Mickey Mantle's 13. In 12 All-Star contests, Kaline has batted .345 with two homers and six RBIs.

First baseman Norm Siebern and shortstop Luis Aparicio represent Baltimore.

Boston third baseman Frank Malzone, outfielders Jimmy Hall of Minnesota and Chuck Hinton of Washington and Peppitone also were named.

Previously announced as starters were Elston Howard, Mantle and Bobby Richardson of the Yankees; rookie Tony Oliva, Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison of the Twins; Baltimore third baseman Brooks Robinson and Los Angeles shortstop J. Fregosi.

Hinton, Freehan and Kaline are among the leading nine league batsmen along with starters Allison, Oliva, Robinson, Fregosi, Mantle and Howard.

Copter Herds Cow to Field

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Traffic was heavy during the evening rush hour Tuesday when a cow meandered onto a north expressway.

A helicopter pilot, relaying traffic conditions to a radio station, saw the bovine. Hovering over it, he herded the cow from the road and into a nearby field.

In 66 years of intercollegiate football, Wyoming has won 218 games, lost 247 and tied 24.

A People's Liberation Army of 8,000,000 men — many of them conscripts — formed into 160 divisions. About three are armored divisions, one is airborne, some are cavalry for desert operations and the great mass are infantry.

A navy of about 135,000, which includes marines. An air arm of about 500 MIG17s. Some 300 submarines, about half equipped for mine-laying. This navy, mainly for coast defense, couldn't stay in the water with the mighty 7th Fleet.
